'Tm Riding This Tractor
A Long Way. Give Me Money.'

A Michigan man has wrapped up a more-than 4,100-mile tractor ride through the Midwest to raise money for charity after going less than half as far as he had planned. Dave Wolfesen, 66, arrived Monday in Ludington, Mich. He set off in June on a red 1937 tractor with a top speed of 25 mph. Wolfesen had planned to ride 9,300 miles through 48 states, but time and bad weather cut short his plans. (AP)

Tornado-Hit Joplin Starts School

Big-box retail store at Mo. mall serves as students' classroom

Joplin, Mo.

The trophy case by the front entrance is nearly empty. Classroom walls are largely bare, and unopened boxes of textbooks, computer monitors and other equipment remain scattered throughout the building.

Signs of unfinished business remain at what is now Joplin High's upper-level campus — a converted big-box retail store at the city's mall, well outside the worst-hit areas from a late May tornado that killed 160 people, injured hundreds more and destroyed thousands of buildings, including the city's only public high school.

to mind the shortcomings.

Child Poverty Increased In 38 States, Study Says

Las Vegas

Karla Washington, an undergraduate student, earns less than $11,000 a year from a part-time university job. The salary must cover food, rent, health care, child care and the occasional splurge on a "Blue's Clues" item for her only child.

Washington's economic woes are seen throughout Nevada, where the nation's highest unemployment and foreclosure rates have combined to devastate families.

A national study on child well-being published Wednesday found that child poverty increased in 38 states from 2000 to 2009.

Egypt Savors a Taste of Change

Maid-turned-TV chef is an unlikely symbol of a country reborn

Cairo

Only in the new Egypt could Ghalia Alia Mahmoud have become a celebrity.

A veiled woman from a poor neighborhood, she cooks in tin pots in a kitchen without measuring cups. She uses such simple, cheap ingredients as beans, pasta and vegetables, all she can afford.

In the old Egypt, Mahmoud worked as a maid. But that was before Jan. 25, the beginning of the upheaval in Cairo that ousted a dictator and ended a system that celebrated the elite while a huge underclass barely subsisted.

Mahmoud, 33, has become a fixture on a television channel named for the day the revolution began, tasked with teaching Egyptians to prepare dishes they can afford.

"This channel is letting Egyptians see themselves," said

Maid-turned-chef Ghalia Alia Mahmoud hosts her cooking show Wednesday in Cairo.

Mohamed Gohar, a media veteran and founder of Channel 25, who chose Mahmoud (his sister's maid) to compete with popular soap operas during the long days of Ramadan, the holy month when Muslims fast from dawn to dusk.

Mahmoud has become an unlikely symbol of a movement aimed at preserving Egypt's spirit of change and social justice, and her popularity has skyrocketed in less than two weeks. Habiba Hesham, one of the show's producers, sees her as a future Oprah Winfrey.

Last week, chic women in a Mercedes, the kind of women who used to look right through her, called to her from their car.

lentil soup?" they asked. She smiled. The world was changing for her.

Her show's subtle messages carry bigger lessons, like her offers to teach Coptic Christians. She said she does it to prove that heightened sectarian tensions don't exist in Egyptian neighborhoods.

"The government only treated the creme de la creme with respect, and the rest of us were invisible," she said after a show this week. "I have so much hope that for my two girls, the country will be different."

U.K. Hacking Scandal Renews for Murdoch Insiders

London

Rupert Murdoch is back on the hot seat of Britain's phone hacking scandal after new documents appeared to contradict the testimony of his son James and his former right-hand man Les Hinton.

As executives fired in the wake of the News of the World's closure begin pointing fingers, onlookers say that James Murdoch and Hinton have questions to answer.

deeply engaged in the cover-up."

Correspondence published Tuesday by U.K. lawmakers investigating the scandal show that Hinton, who published the News of the World, was warned more than four years ago that phone hacking was endemic at the now-defunct tabloid. He was also told that journalists there approved of the practice.

Three former senior News International executives have also disputed James Murdoch's claims last month that he wasn't told the full story by subordinates, and lawmakers have suggested that James Murdoch could be recalled for further questioning.

News International on Tuesday pledged to work with the investigations into the allegations. (AP)

Fashionably Covert

A new book suggests that fashion icon Coco Chanel, who overcame a childhood of poverty to build a luxury supernova, not only had a wartime affair with a German aristocrat and spy, but that she was also a Nazi spy, an agent of Germany's Abwehr military intelligence organization and a rabid anti-Semite. The book, "Sleeping With the Enemy: Coco Chanel's Secret War," published Tuesday in the U.S. by Knopf, has ruffled feathers in France, where Chanel's name has become shorthand for French chic. (AP)

Libyan Rebels Edge Closer to Strategic Victory

Zawiya, Libya

Dozens of opposition fighters surrounded Libya's last functioning oil refinery Wednesday and laid siege to about 100 government troops, part of a push that brought them closer to seizing this strategic western city.

A rebel victory in Zawiya could be a turning point in the six-month war and leave Moammar Gadhafi nearly cornered in his increasingly isolated stronghold of Tripoli, the capital, 30 miles to the east.

Meanwhile ...

On the eastern front of Libya's civil war, outside the rebel-held city of Misrata east of Tripoli, opposition fighters said they captured the town of Haysha, which Gadhafi forces had been using as a base to fire rockets on Misrata. Rebels also clashed with Gadhafi troops in Brega for control of its oil refinery as the movement continued to pile pressure on the regime by seeking to cut off supply routes and oil pipelines. (AP)

Rebel fighters are now closing in on the capital from the west and the south, while NATO controls the seas to the north. The opposition is in control of most of the eastern half of the country.

Wednesday's fighting focused around the sprawling refinery complex on the western outskirts of Zawiya, a city of 200,000. The rebels, who began their assault on the refinery a day earlier, took over the facility's three-story administration building, tearing down the Gadhafi regime's green flag. (AP)

The Mystery of UnsuckDCMetro

Confusion abounds about owner of URL similar to watchdog's

Washington

The Unsuck DC Metro blog is known for chronicling riders' daily complaints on Metro's bus and rail network, but if you type in Unsuckdcmetro.com into your browser, you'll be directed to Wmata.com, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority's website.

The Unsuck DC Metro blog actually lives at Unsuckdcmetro.blogspot.com.

It is not clear who owns the URL

Unsuckdcmetro.com.

On Monday, Metro spokesman Dan Stessel said the transit authority had owned the URL since November 2009.

Stessel wrote in an e-mail, "WMATA's practice has been to acquire the rights to online paths that include Metro's name."

But a day later, he corrected himself. On Tuesday, he sent an e-mail with the subject line: "unsuck - definitely not us."

Stessel explained that the agency had "some erroneous information" in regards to WMATA owning the URL and he has "no idea who has the site and why it pointed to WMATA."

"I've invested $20 into my site. I've never bought the URL. I didn't think of it. ... I didn't really care."

— BLOGGER BEHIND UNSUCKDCMETRO.BLOGSPOT.COM, WHO DOES NOT OWN THE DOMAIN UNSUCKDCMETRO.COM.

The blogger behind Unsuck DC Metro said he doesn't own the Unsuckdcmetro.com domain name either.

The former news reporter said it was never important to him to own the URL. He's had success with his blog, which he launched in January 2009.

"I've invested $20 into my site," he said in a phone interview Monday. "I've never bought the URL. I didn't think of it. I started this site on a lark, and I didn't really care."

"I don't feel like I need the domain name," he said, noting that when he started the blog, he didn't "realize domains are so cheap." But now given his blog's popularity, it is "working fine."

The blogger does not disclose his identity. When asked why he works in anonymity, he referenced a Sept. 27, 2009 column written by The Washington Post's Robert McCartney.

McCartney wrote, "He doesn't want his name published, saying he's received several threats over blog posts that embarrassed Metro employees."

So who owns the URL Unsuckdcmetro.com?

Research of domain registrations shows the URL is registered privately. But a snapshot of the Unsuckdcmetro.com website on Saturday from Google showed it linking to Wtfmetro.com, a site that was run by Langston Majette.

Majette — who works as an aeronautical information specialist for the Federal Aviation Administration — said he does not own the Unsuckdcmetro.com URL. He said he was surprised to learn the site had linked to his now-defunct blog. DANA HEDGPETH (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Court: Drath Cash Sought

Man detailed in letter what he'd be owed if wife died, police say

Washington

Viola Drath's husband gave her family a letter discussing details about money he claimed would be owed him upon her death on the day she was found dead in the bathroom of her Georgetown home, according to court papers.

Police charging documents released Wednesday said that Albrecht Gero Muth's letter, which was written before Drath's death last week, instructed the executors of her estate to pay him $150,000 if something happened to her — and another $50,000 if the estate's liquid assets totaled more than $600,000.

Scheduled to appear in court Wednesday for the first time since he was arrested Tuesday night and charged with murdering his elderly wife last week, Muth, 47, told Drath's family that she wrote and signed the letter, the charging documents said. A family member said the signature was forged, according to the documents.

Muth also allegedly asked a member of Drath's family whether the family would continue paying him the $2,000 monthly allowance his wife gave him, according to the court papers.

When a detective asked Muth whether Drath, 91, died in an accident, according to the documents, he replied, "It wasn't an accident." He told detectives an intruder must have killed her, but they found no sign of an intruder or evidence of a robbery.

"It doesn't look good for me," Muth told detectives, according to the court papers. KEITH L. ALEXANDER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Boy Charged in 92-Year-Old's Death

Forestville, Md.

A 15-year-old boy will be charged with murder in the stabbing death of a 92-year-old Forestville woman who lived on the same street, Prince George's police said.

William Roger Fitts, 15, was a neighbor of Thelma Steele, who was found dead Monday night in her house in the 2900 block of East Avenue, police said.

Her granddaughter said police told her that the house had been ransacked.

A police spokesman said the teenager admitted some involvement in the crime, and that a knife and some of Steele's property were found in his home.

Fitts

Steele, whose husband died years ago, had worked for many years as a secretary at a bank in the District but was long retired, her granddaughter said. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

The Golden Touch

In these uncertain economic times, there's a new rush on an old favorite

New York

For what is normally a sleepy month, there are so many customers at the Gold Standard, a New York company that buys jewelry, that it feels like Christmas in August. Uncle Ben's Pawn Shop in Cleveland has never seen a rush like this.

Welcome to the new American gold rush. The price of gold is on a remarkable run, setting a record seemingly every other day. Stomach-churning volatility in the stock market this month has only made investors covet gold more.

Some want it as a safe investment for turbulent times. What worries some investors is that many others are buying simply because the price is rising and they want to make money fast.

"Is gold the next bubble?" asks Bill DiRocco, a golf company manager in Overland Park, Kan., who shifted 10 percent of his portfolio earlier this year into an investment fund that tracks the price of gold. He stopped buying because the price kept rising.

Hedging Bets

Now, in a time of turmoil, including the credit downgrade and debate over raising the debt limit in the U.S.; the growing financial crisis in Europe; and the worries of slow

Backstory

Nixon's Big Move

The last time gold prices rose so precipitously was a few years after President Richard Nixon ended a decades-long fixed relationship between the value of the dollar and the value of gold.

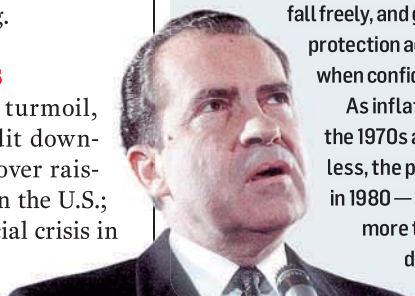

In those days, the price of gold was fixed at about $35 an ounce. And many foreign currencies were pegged to the dollar. Gold gave the dollar its value, and the dollar gave everything else value.

Then the U.S. began running a trade deficit, and dollars piled up abroad. Central banks could redeem dollars for gold. But it was a poorly kept secret that the U.S. didn't have enough gold to cash out every dollar in circulation.

To head off a rush, Nixon "closed the gold window," essentially saying that confidence in the U.S. government, not gold, gives the dollar its value. Gold and the dollar began to rise and fall freely, and gold earned its place as protection against the falling dollar when confidence lags.

As inflation worsened later in the 1970s and dollars were worth less, the price of gold hit its high in 1980—$850 an ounce, or more than $2,300 in today's dollars. (AP)

"I fanned my money in front of him and said, 'Look what I got for my gold.'"

growth around the globe, gold is dazzling investors.

Since the financial crisis in 2008, central banks around the world have bought gold as a hedge against their foreign currency holdings. Earlier this month, South Korea announced it had bought gold for the first time in more than 10 years.

Gold is "an effective hedge in a world where there is too much debt and uncertainty," says Jim McDonald, chief investment strategist at Northern Trust, which owns $2.8 billion of gold in a gold fund.

Worth Its Weight?

When it comes to gold prices, no one really knows. That's because gold doesn't have intrinsic value. It doesn't offer an interest rate, like a bond, or represent a share of a company, like a stock. It is inherently speculative as an investment: You make money only if the price goes up.

Amy Robinette, who owns Gold Buying Girl, a network of 70 women in six states who throw parties for people to sell their gold jewelry, says her clients "don't realize how much their gold is worth." She gets a cut of the sales.

"Once they sell, it kind of creates a frenzy," says Robinette, who quit a career as a personnel recruiter to start the business two years ago. "They either want to find more or tell their friends, and their friends start selling."

Sharlett Wilkinson Buckner, of Humble, Texas, recently took an old bracelet, ring and necklace to her local jeweler and walked out with $1,070.

"I couldn't wait for my husband to come home," she said.

The next day, he sold an old gold necklace for $650.

Why Gold?

Gold hits a sweet spot among the elements: It's rare, but not too rare. Plus, it's chemically stable; all the gold ever mined is still around. And it can be divided into small amounts without losing its properties. Ultimately, though, gold is valuable because we all agree it is. (AP)

Ups and Downs

In October 2007, gold sold for about $740 an ounce. A little over a year later, it rose above $1,000 for the first time. This past March, it began rocketing up. On Wednesday, it traded at $1,795 an ounce, just shy of last week's record of $1,801.

Meanwhile, stocks, despite rising sharply in the last two and a half years, are only slightly higher in price than they were a decade ago. Since hitting a record high in October 2007, the Standard & Poor's 500 index is down 23 percent. (AP)

Stunning allegations at Miami put added scrutiny on NCAA

College Football

The NCAA said Wednesday it has been investigating the relationship between a convicted Ponzi scheme artist and the University of Miami for five months, and the allegations — if true — show the need for “serious and fundamental change” in college sports.

Golden

Former booster Nevin Shapiro, now serving 20 years in federal prison, claims he treated players with sex parties, nightclub outings, cars and other gifts. Shapiro told Yahoo! Sports he provided improper benefits to 72 football players and other athletes at Miami from 2002 to 2010.

“If the assertions are true, the alleged conduct at the University of Miami is an illustration of the need for serious and fundamental change in many critical aspects of college sports,” NCAA president Mark Emmert said.

The Hurricanes’ entire football team took the practice field Wednesday, even though Shapiro’s claims involve several current players. Coach Al Golden said

Miami’s Vices

Former Miami booster Nevin Shapiro said he gave money, cars, yacht trips, jewelry, televisions and other gifts to a list of players including Vince Wilfork, Jon Beason, Antrel Rolle, Devin Hester, Willis McGahee and the late Sean Taylor. Shapiro also claimed he paid for restaurant meals and, in one case, an abortion for a woman impregnated by a player. One former Miami player, running back Tyrone Moss, told Yahoo! Sports he accepted $1,000 from Shapiro around the time he was entering college.

OTHER CLAIMS

- ▶ Shapiro said he paid basketball recruit DeQuan Jones, now a senior, $10,000 to secure his commitment.
- ▶ At least six coaches and as many as 10 athletic department employees overall were allegedly aware of Shapiro’s illicit activity, including former basketball coach Frank Haith, now at Missouri. Haith denied the claims late Tuesday.
- ▶ Shapiro said he paid for 39 players to receive sex from prostitutes. He also claimed to have offered a $5,000 bounty to any player who could knock Florida State quarterback Chris Rix out of a game; provided players access to his multimillion-dollar home and yacht; and even alleges he bought rims for Hester’s SUV. (AP)

Recent High-Profile NCAA Cases

-  USC’s football team was stripped of its 2004 national title for infractions that also forced Reggie Bush to give back his Heisman Trophy.
-  Connecticut’s men’s basketball team was found to have committed recruiting infractions two months before winning its third national title.
-  Auburn and Oregon, last season’s two BCS finalists, have felt the heat. The NCAA determined Heisman winner Cam Newton was not aware of his father’s pay-for-play recruitment scheme. Oregon is under investigation for allegedly paying $25,000 to a recruiting service that is accused of steering a recruit to the program.
-  Ohio State football coach Jim Tressel resigned amid an investigation into players receiving cash and tattoos for autographs, championship rings and equipment.
-  North Carolina football Butch Davis was recently fired after allegations surfaced about academic misconduct and improper benefits going to players. (AP) it was too soon to take disciplinary action. The Hurricanes open their season Sept. 5 against Maryland. “Everybody is practicing,” said the first-year coach. “If it is determined somebody broke rules, then, certainly, they’ll be first dealt with.”

Players weren’t permitted to speak with the media.

The allegations against Miami — a program that once reveled in an outlaw image and dealt with a massive Pell Grant scandal in the 1990s — have sparked the latest in a string of NCAA investigations involving some of college football’s most high-profile and successful programs. In the past 18 months, football teams at Southern California, Ohio State, Auburn, Oregon, Michigan, North Carolina, Georgia Tech and LSU have been investigated or sanctioned by the NCAA.

NCAA investigators were on the Miami campus this week in the wake of the allegations by Shapiro and have interviewed Miami president Donna Shalala and athletic director Shawn Eichorst. Shapiro was sentenced to prison in June for masterminding a $930 million Ponzi scheme and was ordered to pay more than $82 million in restitution to investors.

Golden said he’s eager to obtain answers quickly, so his players don’t repeat mistakes. “If they were exposed to Mr. Shapiro, clearly, we have to make sure we prevent that going forward,” Golden said. (AP)

United Is at Home on the Road

Major League Soccer

After beating Vancouver on Saturday for its first victory at RFK Stadium in more than three months, D.C. United heads to a place it has treated like a true home for most of the season: the road.

Despite having a roster loaded with young players — 11 are younger than 25 — United has repeatedly found success in hostile environments and will look to continue the trend with two road games in four days, starting with a nationally televised bout with the last-place Chicago Fire Thursday night.

“I don’t know if it’s that we’re more focused there and away from some of the distractions that are at home, but we seem to be tuned in and making the plays that count and eliminating our mistakes,” said D.C. midfielder Chris Pontius, who captured MLS player of the week honors after his two-goal outburst in the win over Vancouver.

United’s 4-3-3 road record is the only one that cracks the .500 mark in Major League Soccer’s Eastern Conference. Only Los Angeles, Seattle and Colorado have more road victories in the entire league, and they’ve each accomplished that while playing 13 games away from home as opposed to United’s 10.

United is the only team in the league to have more road wins than home wins, and it has already eclipsed the number of road victories that every United team has had dating back to 2007.

“It’s not that we have a different mentality” on the road, rookie defender Perry Kitchen said. “It’s just we identify their strengths and weaknesses, go out and play together as a team, and take advantage of our chances when we get them.”

Thursday’s match also provides a chance for an infamous streak to come full circle. The last time D.C. United won consecutive league games was in June 2009, when it beat New York and Chicago back-to-back at home. AVI CREDITOR

Road Warriors

D.C. United faces consecutive opponents on the road for the fourth time this year, with the club looking to improve its conference-best road record.

- The first road swing of the season resulted in losses at New England and Colorado.
- Back-to-back road games against Portland and Los Angeles at the end of May and the beginning of June yielded a four-point haul, which included handing Portland its first home loss and coming up with a draw at league-leading L.A.
- The last stretch also yielded four points, with D.C. beating rival New York and tying title-contender FC Dallas last month, shutting out both opponents in the process. A.C.

What role does nostalgia play?

It's about the idea of memory and longing for something that I'm actually working towards. The title of the show is taken from the book "The Mysteries of Pittsburgh," by Michael Chabon. It's not an exact quote, but the main character and a girl are having a moment, and he says, "You make me nostalgic for a place I've never known." That really resonated with me. I used that idea as a starting point.

This piece is site-specific. How did the space inform the work?

I'd been having this idea of long, hanging clouds, like smokestacks or a cloud-factory image — also from "Mysteries of Pittsburgh" — for a while. At Flashpoint, I did an intense measuring, and I looked for all the little cubbies, the quirky areas.

What would you like visitors to get out of the installation?

What's interesting about the Flashpoint piece is that the inflating is controlled by the [gallery's] air system — so when someone comes in, there's a possibility the piece might not be inflated, which makes them stop and wait. There's a moment of inflating and deflating, of waiting and longing that reinforces the theme. JESSICA ROAKE

Shakespeare Theatre brings back 'Caesar' for its Free For All

Theater

With its political speechifying, strategizing and rabble-rousing, "Julius Caesar" is often cited as the Shakespeare play most relevant to modern-day Washington, D.C. This makes it a natural choice for this year's annual Shakespeare Theatre Free For All.

Of course, the story of the assassination of Rome's leader by his deputies and the subsequent battles between factions is a bit more violent than D.C.'s political back-biting. But even as this production, first mounted in 2008, sticks staunchly to the togas and columns of ancient Rome, the parallels are still apparent.

"It makes me think about the actual historical events more than you might if it were being done in business suits," says Tom Hammond, who plays tragic hero Brutus. "There was a day when these guys made this decision and actually had to carry it out, and the fact that we're performing in togas makes you think about that more."

Tickets for the free show are available online or at the theater's box office, where a few hun-

Until 2009, Free For All was held outdoors, in the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Rock Creek Park. To make heat-averse patrons more comfortable, organizers moved the event to the air-conditioned Sidney Harman Hall two years ago.

Richard Lewis is part of a proud line of bleakly funny comedians, falling somewhere after Lenny Bruce, before Steven Wright and next to personal pal Larry David. “Most lives are pretty miserable, other than a few bouts of happiness,” Lewis kvetches. That’s been the basic philosophy behind his four-decade stand-up career — mining his own neuroses and self-loathing for uncomfortable laughs.

Lately, however, the bouts of happiness are more frequent: Lewis, 64, has been sober for 17 years and married for six. He’s settled into a recurring role (as sort of himself) on HBO’s “Curb Your Enthusiasm” and recently wrapped shooting for “Vamps,” a comedy-horror flick from “Clueless” director Amy Heckerling.

But don’t worry: Lewis hasn’t let success soften his edges. With his signature pose of hand to forehead, Lewis will take the stage Friday and Saturday at Syntetic Theater to air his angst. STEPHEN M. DEUSNER

ON (LITERALLY) LIVING WITH HIS INFLUENCES:

I live in the Hollywood Hills in this house that’s 100 years old. It’s called the Museum. It’s an homage to the arts. Some of the stuff is pretty cool, and some of it is only valuable because of the meaning behind it. There’s me on the cover of Esquire 22 years ago. And pictures of Miles Davis and Lenny Bruce, iconic people who set the bar so high in what they did. It’s so easy to fall into a lot of dark stuff, so I really embrace the fact that [I’m surrounded by] letters from the president or a picture of Charlie Haden on the cover of Downbeat.

ON RESPECTING HIS ELDERS:

It’s fun to have these 40-something comedians like Sarah Silverman who were children when I was doing Letterman every six weeks in the ’80s. When I hear from them about how they were watching me [while growing up], I think it’s the same thing as me watching Jonathan Winters and Phyllis Diller when I was a child. I’m really close with a lot of comedians who are in their 80s and 90s now who have meant a lot to me. I make sure they know that I care about them because it’s very easy to feel forgotten when you’re that age and you’re not on TV anymore. They don’t know how huge they were.

ON HIS FREE-FORM STYLE:

I don’t have a show. I just have a thousand things in my head. I need the audience more than any other comedian. I’m hard to follow; I don’t do setup jokes — that would bore the hell out of me. I just ramble, and, hopefully, some form of entertainment comes out of me. That is my goal: to take people out of their skulls for a while.

ON RELIGION: I tend to deconstruct every religion known to man. Not that I don’t believe in the right to believe in a religion, but I would really prefer to have some proof. I guess you would call me a spiritual agnostic. Faith is a good thing, but if it’s “my way or the highway,” then I find it laughable. I’d love to be proven wrong, though. I’d love someone to come down and be on a talk show. “You’ll never believe it, but Jesus is going to be on ‘Jimmy Kimmel.’”

ON BICKERING WITH LARRY DAVID:

The eighth season of “Curb” just started. It’s the longest-running [scripted] HBO show. Larry and I started together. We usually argue on the show, and we do in real life, too, unfortunately. I love the guy; I’ve got his back. But we trigger each other. It’s the greatest, most surreal gig I’ve ever had — to play yourself with a friend you’ve known since you were a kid, ad-libbing every word and arguing like we do in real life. I’m not sure if it’s even acting. I’m not sure what it is.

ON LIFE NOT IMITATING ART:

It’s amazing how people think “Curb” is real. There was a season where I needed a kidney transplant, and I’d get emails from guys who used to beat me up in high school saying they were sorry. There was a stripper subplot, and the other night I was walking down the street and people were shouting out, “Hey, are you dating that stripper?”

"Drunken Master," director Woo-ping Yuen's 1978 kung fu classic, screens Friday and Sunday at the Freer Gallery of Art.

A Smithsonian series looks at the influence of martial arts films on hip-hop history

Music & Film

The Wu-Tang Clan built a career out of using kung fu samples and imagery in its music. But the relationship between rap and martial arts runs deeper than just one group — and that's the lesson of "The Hip-Hop/Kung Fu Connection," a weekend-long series of events at the Freer and Sackler galleries.

Sure, some of the fight scenes in those campy old kung fu flicks look a lot like break-dancing moves, but it's not just the awesome physical skills of martial artists that have influenced hip-hop culture.

"There's a political aspect," says Tom Vick, film programmer for the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery and the Freer Gallery of Art. "The lone minority fending off the authoritarian white invaders — that resonated with kids growing up in the inner city."

This empowerment is what inspired Wu-Tang mastermind RZA, who in his 2009 book "The Tao of Wu" talks about getting emotional while watching the 1978 classic "The 36th Chamber of Shaolin."

"This idea of brotherhood and honor in the film was similar to what [kids in the burgeoning hip-hop scene] lived with just trying to survive in the projects in New York," Vick says. "They saw something in those films other people might have seen as campy or silly, but they saw it as a very real way of living — a way to live according to a code of honor."

New York-based DJ duo Hop-Fu, who will perform Saturday at 2 p.m., raises this connection to the level of performance art, making live mixes in time to classic kung fu films. (On Saturday, the movie will be 1984's "The Super Ninja.")

"During the fight scenes, it becomes a scratch battle between the DJs," explains Vick.

Hop-Fu member Barry Cole will also speak at 4 p.m. Sunday at "The Hip-Hop/Kung Fu/Afro-Asian Connection," a panel discussion and screening with Nelson George, author of "Hip-Hop America," and Konrad Ng, director of the Smithsonian Asian Pacific American Program. The program will be preceded by a 2 p.m. showing of Jackie Chan's 1978 gem "Drunken Master." (The film also screens Friday at 7 p.m.)

Funny Because It's True

Museums

At 94, comedian Phyllis Diller has doled out a million jokes about her bad cooking and housekeeping over a six-decade career.

Diller kept her jokes organized in an enormous cabinet she dubbed her "gag file," which she donated to the National Museum of American History in 2003. The file — containing 50,000 jokes — is the central object in the museum's new exhibit, "Have You Heard the One ...? The Phyllis Diller Gag File." It's a tribute to a groundbreaking entertainer.

"The gag file really does give an alternate portrait of women in her era," says Dwight Bowers, curator for the museum's Division of Culture and the Arts. "Phyllis Diller really challenged the established mores about women at the time — that they were only homemakers and housewives. And she does it with humor, which means you laugh first, and then you think about what she said." STEPHEN M. DEUSNER

Unplanned Revisions

As solo act Dntel, Jimmy Tamborello revisits a lost classic of glitch-pop: his own

Music

Jimmy Tamborello made his ground-breaking album "Life Is Full of Possibilities" not just once, but twice.

The first time was in 2001, when Tamborello (who records under the name Dntel) assembled the album out of squelchy beats, lush synths and vocals from Rilo Kiley's Jenny Lewis and Death Cab for Cutie's Ben Gibbard (who later teamed up with Tamborello as the Postal Service). A glitch-pop touchstone, "Life" inspired a generation of bedroom auteurs to trade guitars for laptops, including Geotix and the One AM Radio — who are playing with Dntel at the Red Palace on Friday.

Ten years later, when Tamborel-lo began preparing a nationwide tour and a 10th-anniversary reissue of "Life Is Full of Possibilities" (out in October), he discovered that many of the computer files containing the original sound elements were either missing or deleted — victims of technological upgrades or his own disorganization. "Back then, I had different computers," Tamborello says. "I didn't keep track of archiving the files, so I don't have the separate parts of a lot of the songs anymore. I had to completely rebuild them."

Slavish devotion to the original wasn't a priority; instead, he took liberties with his most famous songs, such as "(This Is) The Dream of Evan and Chan."

"I didn't want to remake them completely the same, because that would be just tedious and painful," Tamborello says.

Jimmy Tamborello is best known as one half of beloved indie-rock group the Postal Service. He performs as his solo-act incarnation, Dntel, on Friday at the Red Palace.

"You have to pay attention to the set as a whole and make it something you wouldn't get just by listening to the music at home."

But he says the songs will retain their gauzy flow as well as their delicate blend of beats and vocals. "With this kind of music, you can't do everything live," he says. "A lot of it is going to be pre-recorded. I like to treat it almost like a DJ set. You have to pay attention to the set as a whole and make it something you wouldn't get just by listening to the music at home."

Having spent so much time examining the past, Tamborello is currently working on new songs, which may result in an EP or even a new album in 2012. "After the tour, I think I'm done with the old songs," he says. "I'm more excited to play all-new stuff." STEPHEN M. DEUSNER

'80s punk rock band Marginal Man brings back its hardcore hits

Music

Like many other artists, Kenny Inouye credits his parents with fueling his musical interests. "They turned me on to the Beatles," said Inouye, 47.

But Inouye's dad is Medal of Honor winner Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, one of the longest-serving senators in history. And the Democratic icon's son was an 18-year-old freshman at George Washington University when he helped form Marginal Man in 1982, during one of the most fertile times in D.C. punk history.

"Our first show was in the basement of someone's house for a party; there were, like, 20 people there," Inouye said. "And the second show was opening up for Minor Threat at the 9:30 Club."

The senator supported his son unequivocally. "I don't think he'd consider himself a fan [of Marginal Man]," Inouye said. "But he was supportive. He and my mom came out several times to see us play."

Inouye and his four bandmates will relive their youth when Marginal Man performs a one-off reunion show — though this isn't the group's first re-formation since it broke up in 1988. Marginal Man played reunion gigs in 1991 and 1995.

"When [Government Issue] did their reunion show back in December, [Marginal Man drummer] Mike Manos and I sat in on a couple of Marginal Man songs with Set to Explode, who opened for GI that night," Inouye said. "It was a fun time, and it got even more folks hitting us up to do a reunion show. In fact, shortly after that gig I was contacted by someone who wanted to book a small U.S. tour for us."

That's unlikely, since the band's members are spread across America. Inouye said Marginal Man does have one post-reunion-show plan, though: "We're going to have breakfast the next day." CHRISTOPHER PORTER

Against All Odds

"ONE DAY," opening Friday, checks in on Emma and Dexter (Anne Hathaway and Jim Sturgess) one day per year. And it's so ROMANTIC we just want to puke. Here are other films that prove that love is best when it's impossible on some level. K.P.K.

1 Chances Are (1989)

Audiences learned that it's OK if you get flattened by a car, because you'll get reincarnated as Robert Downey Jr., meet up with your widow (Cybill Shepherd) and be attracted to your daughter (Mary Stuart Masterson).

2 Return to Me (2000)

More proof that love is stronger than car accidents: Minnie Driver gets David Duchovny's wife's heart and they fall in love despite many hardships, including patient privacy laws.

3 Leap Year (2010)

Amy Adams can propose to her fiancé (Adam Scott) only on Leap Day! Because she's a girl! And needs a special day to be active in making decisions about her life! Shut up, movie.

4 Portrait of Jennie (1948)

Joseph Cotten is a struggling artist inspired by a little girl (Jennifer Jones). Then her puberty accelerates and she grows up faster than nature allows so she can "catch up" to Cotten. Which isn't creepy or anything.

5 The Bounty Hunter (2010)

Every good romance needs conflict; here, it comes from Gerard Butler having to bring his ex-wife (Jennifer Aniston) to jail. But that only shows that he loves her. Flowers would have done it, you know.

'Spy Kids 4D' director Robert Rodriguez finds new inspiration right under his nose

Screen

Robert Rodriguez burst onto the film scene two decades ago with "El Mariachi," a low-budget movie that he funded partially by selling his body for Mexican medical experiments. He's directed visually stunning, sometimes deeply disturbing films such as "Sin City" and "Machete." And he's also directed the "Spy Kids" series? Yes, and the fourth entry, "Spy Kids: All the Time in the World in 4D," opens Friday.

Rodriguez acknowledges the wide spectrum of his work but says it's similar to the way everyone else lives their lives.

"When you're with your friends, you're different than when you're with your kids," he says. "You can be two people pretty easily. I love doing the genre films, but I need a place to put the other ideas."

Those ideas, at least in the case of "Spy Kids 4D," come from his own life. The father of five empathizes with the Time Keeper (Jeremy Piven), the villain in the film who is out to take over the planet.

"Watching my kids grow up

Robert Rodriguez, top, directs on the set of "Spy Kids 4D." At left, Mason Cook (as Cecil) does something spy-like.

so fast, I just wanted to freeze time," Rodriguez says. "The villain in the movie is basically me. He's just doing it the wrong way."

The children's films Rodriguez helms — "The Adventures of Sharkboy and Lavagirl" is another — are not, he makes clear, films he does so he can take it easy. These are "not an assignment, they're not the only gig I could get, something I could do with my left hand."

Rodriguez is known for the technical savvy he brings to his films, which he mostly shoots in Austin, Texas, where he lives. His latest advance is "Aromascope," which will have the audiences of

"Watching my kids grow up so fast, I just want to freeze time. The villain in the movie is basically me."

"Spy Kids 4D" scratching and sniffing cards at certain points in the movie (which was shot in 3-D.)

"Aromascope adds an interactive quality," he says. "This bridges the gap between playing a game and watching a movie. It strengthens the bond between the audience and the characters."

Rodriguez has earned his reputation of being visually innovative without breaking the bank. "How I bridge the gap between my ideas and my budget is with technology," he says. "My movie can play in the summer, next to blockbusters, but it costs nothing in comparison."

"I've been offered [big-budget movies]. I think it hurts you when you have too much money. It's like asking a mom-and-pop place, 'Why don't you just become a chain restaurant?' Well, we'll lose everything that makes us unique."

indies & arties

WRITTEN BY EXPRESS' KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY

Ayrton Senna's racing life is detailed in the new documentary "Senna," which has way more car chases than the usual indie.

Truth Travels at the Speed of a Really Fast Car

If you're under the impression that indie films just don't have enough car chases, well, then, you're right. But we can fix that! "Senna," a documentary (stay with me) opening Friday at the E Street Cinema, is about Brazilian Formula One (those are the really low cars with no roofs and the open wheels, as opposed to NASCAR) racing legend Ayrton Senna. The movie isn't so much about racing, but about the moronic genius Senna was behind the wheel — moronic because he took increasingly stupid chances; genius because they often paid off. "Top Gear's" Jeremy Clarkson declared the film "completely unmissable," and we tend to do whatever Clarkson says. (Even though he's kind of a jerk, he's usually right.) If you want to combine a love of independent films with a love of watching cars go really, really, really, really, really fast, "Senna" is a good place to start learning about the most famous Brazilian ever to take the wheel. ▶ Landmark E Street Cinema, 555 11th St. NW; opens Fri.; $8-$11; 202-452-7672, Landmarktheatres.com. The Love Language's most recent album, "Libraries," was a break-down-confessional classic. Frontman Stuart McLamb, left, went through a break-up and, like you do, coped by writing a gorgeous batch of songs that largely avoid the abject misery so characteristic of breakup albums. → Rock and Roll Hotel, 1353 H St. NE; Fri., 8 p.m., $12; 202-388-7625, Rockandrollhoteldc.com.

5 Family Tradition

Justin Townes Earle, son of country-rock legend Steve Earle, shares a lot with his dad. Amazing musical talent, of course, and also a checkered history with addiction. Right now it seems he's focusing on the former — his music is a bit folkier than his father's but no less compelling. → Birchmere, 3701 Mt. Of course Ke$ha's tour is called "Get $leazy." No performer in the history of the world has put such effort into being provocative. We could write a thesis on the disturbing interchange of musical talent and talent for making a scene that Ke$ha represents, but we don't have the space, so we'll just boil it down: Don't you always start dancing when "Tik Tok" comes on? → Patriot Center, 4500 Patriot Circle, Fairfax; Sun., 7:30 p.m., $49.50; 703-993-3000, Patriotcenter.com.

Weekend Pass | dining

1226 36TH ST. NW; 202-865-1789, 1789RESTAURANT.COM. (FOGGY BOTTOM)
Georgetown isn't renowned as a bargain destination, but 1789 might change that reputation with its summer dinner deal. For $40, guests get an ever-changing three-course menu, which might include entrees such as black grouper with smoked Manila clams and desserts such as cherry pie, above. Fine Print: Available Sundays through Thursdays. Download a coupon from 1789's website or just mention the deal to your server. Expires Sept. 15.

Proof

775 G ST. NW; 202-737-7663, PROOFDC.COM. (GALLERY PLACE)

You can leave your sword and armor at home for Proof's War of the Rosés. The Penn Quarter hot spot is offering a rotating selection of bottles for only $35 each (not including tax and tip). The options, which come from around the globe, include a French Pinot Noir and a Zweigelt from Austria. Fine Print: Available only in the bar, patio and lounge areas. Expires Sept. 5.

SUMMER STEALS

While stores are busy pushing notebooks and Halloween candy, local restaurants haven't forgotten that August is still summer. Some of the District's coolest eateries have ongoing seasonal specials: chilling cocktails, summery salads and decadent desserts. But you'd better act quickly, because these deals — like that bag of trick-or-treat candy you buy in September — will be gone too soon. NEVIN MARTELL

Casa Nonna

1250 CONNECTICUT AVE. NW; 202-629-2505, CASANONNA.COM. (DUPONT CIRCLE)
At the end of a long day at the office, all you want to do is unwind without blowing all the money you just earned. So stop by happy hour at Casa Nonna for $5 appetizers, such as risotto balls, right, and beer-braised short rib sliders. For another fiver, you can enjoy one of three frosty drafts — Allagash White, Dogfish Head IPA and Peroni — or a small carafe of the house red or white wine. Fine Print: Available from 4 to 6:30 p.m. daily. Expires in mid-September.

PS 7's

777 I ST. NW; 202-742-8550, PS7RESTAURANT.COM. (GALLERY PLACE)
Chef Peter Smith has a new muse: his grandmother's cookbook from the 1940s. The tasty tome has inspired a slate of retro-American dishes, including ham loaf ($10) and halibut with tomato marmalade ($13). When it comes to dessert, you're sure to leave singing Grandma's praises, whether you order the fresh-from-the-fat potato doughnuts ($5) or the sweetly tart rhubarb pie ($4.50). Fine Print: Available only at the bar during lunchtime. Expires Sept. 2.

Kafe Leopold

3315 M ST. NW; 202-865-8005, KAFELEOPOLDS.COM. (FOGGY BOTTOM)
7-Eleven may have Slurpees and the boardwalk might have snow cones, but Italy takes frozen goodness to the next level with crushed ice granitas. To honor this scrumptious summer tradition, Kafe Leopold is selling a sweet and tangy peach version of the drink tarted up with a sprig of mint and a couple bunches of raspberry ($7). Fine Print: Expires Sept. 21.

Buzz

818 N. QUINCY ST., ARLINGTON; 703-650-9676, BUZZONSLATERS.COM. (BALLSTON)
Every Wednesday from 4 to 8 p.m., this Ballston bakery transforms its patio into a party with Sundown Splashes. Kids can get wet with a frolic in the fountain while adults whet their whistles with $2-off beers, cocktails and wines by the glass. When the little ones need a pick-me-up, you can give them gooey chocolate chip cookies ($1, right), chocolate dipped honey-banana pops ($1.50) and hot dogs ($1). Fine print: The promotion runs through fall as long as weather permits.

Heads Up: Restaurant Week ends Sunday, but some places extend deals through the end of August. Visit Restaurantweekmetrodc.org to find more cheap eats.

TABLE TREATS

It's nice to feel like a VIP when you dine out — as long as that doesn't involve paparazzi taking awkward photos of you licking the plate. These eateries give all their guests the A-list treatment by providing complimentary gourmet small bites with your meal.

Adour

The evening begins with hot-from-the-oven gougères — small balls of light pastry infused with cheese — and ends with a selection of French macaroons handmade by chef Fabrice Bendano. 923 16th St. NW; 202-509-8000, Adour-washingtondc.com. (Farragut North)

2941

The bill arrives with an extra dose of glucose. The lunch crowd gets caramel-peanut popcorn, while dinner guests are treated to a tasty trio — a raspberry-lychee pâté de fruit, a passion fruit tartlet and chocolate bonbons. 2941 Fairview Park Drive, Falls Church; 703-270-1500, 2941.

BLT Steak

Diners are first treated to homemade chicken liver pâté with toasted country bread, then warm, giant popovers crisscrossed with golden-orange strands of baked Gruyere cheese. 1625 I St. NW; 202-689-8999, E2hospitality.com. (Farragut West)

Patriotic Palates

Jose Andres focuses on native cuisine with America Eats Tavern

New Spot

Jose Andres can't resist cocktail shrimp. At least not when it's served the old-fashioned way, paired with juicy grapefruit segments and dressed with vinaigrette. The dish at Andres' America Eats Tavern comes from Irma Rombauer's 1931 classic cookbook "Joy of Cooking."

"It's almost like the book spoke to me and said, 'Jose, please bring me back. I deserve it,'" Andres says. "This dish is so delicate, so feminine, so free." And so different from the "shrimp cocktail" with horseradish-laced sauce that we know today. That makes it a perfect fit for the eatery featuring classic and forgotten American cuisine, intended to complement the National Archives' exhibit "What's Cooking, Uncle Sam?" Sponsored by American Express and Dole Food Co., the restaurant opened in July and will operate through January.

Vision: "Speaking to a lot of people, I never sensed that there is a true pride in American cooking," the Spanish-born Andres says. He hopes to remedy that with America Eats Tavern, named after the 1930s Works Progress Administration project that saw writers document Americans' relationship with food. The menu showcases soups, salads, stews, sandwiches, ketchups (eight varieties), oysters (served seven different ways), desserts and drinks that date from the 17th to the 20th centuries.

Jose Andres says he's wanted to create a place like America Eats Tavern for 10 years.

America Eats' deconstructed key lime pie is a dramatic take on the dessert.

Atmosphere

A tower of window frames in the center of the three-floor restaurant showcases images from the Archives exhibit. "We were trying to open a window into the past," Andres says. Graffiti artist Erni Vales' painting "The Founding Father" adds a patriotic pop of red, white and blue to the ground floor.

Eats: Andres stays faithful to aging recipes but incorporates whimsical plating. The 19th-century mac and cheese ancestor "vermicelli prepared like pudding," for instance, is served as a small cake topped with mushrooms. There are classics: grilled cheese made from a Depression-era recipe ($14); and peanut butter and blackberry jam sandwiches — which are available topped with foie gras ($16). Desserts such as key lime pie and strawberry shortcake ($10 each) arrive in dramatic, deconstructed forms.

Drinks: Stiff drinks fill bartender Owen Thompson's cocktail menu. Benjamin Franklin's circa-1763 milk punch contains brandy, lemon, sugar, milk and nutmeg ($12). Beer drinkers can find a range of American-made brews, and the wine list includes bottles from American vineyards. Riesling from New York's Gotham Wine Project is served on tap ($10). Dine & Dash: The Kennedy Center invites you to leave the suits, cocktail dresses and furs hanging. Reservations are required but formal attire may be mocked at the Roof Terrace Restaurant's (2700 F St. NW; 202-416-8555, Kennedy-center.org) Dog Days of Summer event (Aug. 25, 7-11 p.m.). For $40, flip-flop-clad attendees will join sommelier John Coco and executive chef Joe Gurner for a casual evening filled with grilled food and drinks on the eatery's wraparound terrace.

A campaign was waged to convince "Sesame Street" to stage a gay wedding for roommate puppets Bert and Ernie. "Sesame Street's" response: The pair "remain puppets and do not have a sexual orientation." Case closed ... or is it? In fact, many TV puppets past and present do indeed have a sexual orientation:

▶ Wooden marionette Charlie McCarthy speaking to human cowgirl Dale Evans: Charlie: "May I have a kiss goodbye?" Evans: "Well, I can't see any harm in that!"

Charlie: "Oh, I wish you could. A harmless kiss doesn't sound very thrilling."

▶ TV Guide's description of dragon puppet Ollie of "Kukla, Fran and Ollie": "Oliver J. Dragon III [is] an incurably romantic hand puppet with ... soulful button-eyes." Among his celebrity crushes: Tallulah "I'm as pure as the driven slush" Bankhead.

▶ Though Oscar the Grouch's first love is trash, he also has romantic feelings for girlfriend Grundgetta.

▶ Miss Piggy: "I, moiseif, have always enjoyed a good scrimmage."

P.S. There's already been a gay puppet wedding. On July 24, investment banker Rod of Broadway's "Avenue Q" married fellow gay puppet Ricky, sealing the deal with a passionate kiss.

Electronic music moves from night to day with the Identity Festival

Concerts

The main question associated with the Identity Festival has been asked in various forms for 15 or so years: Is America ready to embrace electronic music?

In the late 1990s, it seemed almost inevitable. But even as a barrage of flashy British acts such as the Prodigy, Chemical Brothers and Fatboy Slim arrived with big exposure and bigger beats, electronic music and the culture it spawned — where people joyously danced to DJs in warehouses until the break of dawn — remained a mostly underground phenomenon. It's stayed that way for the past decade, thriving in its up-all-night subculture, but has lately shown serious signs of coming into the daylight. One-off events such as Miami's Ultra Music Festival and Las Vegas' Electric Daisy Carnival have drawn crowds of more than 50,000 people. Identity is looking to replicate that success in cities across the United States as the first major touring festival featuring electronic music.

The Crystal Method, the Los Angeles-based duo of Ken Jordan and Scott Kirkland, was there for the first wave of hype. Back then it was called "electronica,"

"I want to make music that matters and talks about stuff that people maybe don't want to talk about."

and the material on the duo's 1997 debut album, "Vegas," was a good representation of the hard-hitting techno sounds predicted to be the Next Big Thing.

The duo has made three albums since, continues to DJ regularly around the world and stays busy with various projects. And in a genre dominated by young acts and younger fans, Crystal Method has taken on an elder statesman's role. "We are proud to say that we have a couple of generations of people at our shows," Jordan says.

Having been around so long also gives the band some perspective on the genre's recent resurgence. "A lot of pop acts have an electronic sound," Jordan says. And now, many top electronic producers are tapped to work with chart-topping stars. "Rusko, Skrillex, Deadmau5 — those guys are in demand. That's a great thing. That didn't happen in the past."

On the other end of the spectrum is Hercules and Love Affair. Andy Butler is the central figure in a group of rotating characters that makes scintillating and often touching disco-house tunes. That two groups that could hardly be more different are performing on the same stage at Identity Festival shows the genre's wide tent. Groups such as H&LA are bringing an important emotional element to the genre, making your feet move and heart flutter simultaneously.

"I want to make music that matters and talks about stuff that people maybe don't want to talk about," Butler says. "So much of music today is fluff, here today and gone tomorrow. [I try to] put a personal experience into words and make it universal." DAVID MALITZ (THE WASHINGTON POST)

● Jiffy Lube Live, 7800 Cellar Door Drive, Bristow, Va.; Thu., 1 p.m., $50-$100; 703-754-6400, Livenation.com.

Plan Your Identity

More than 25 acts will pack three stages at the Identity Festival Thursday. Here are six you shouldn't miss.

▶ A legend in the world of house music, Steve Aoki, shown, appeared in the video games "NBA 2K8 and "NBA 2K9" as a special celebrity basketball player.

▶ Kaskade has worked closely with mega-DJ Deadmau5 and helped to curate the Identity Festival.

▶ British 26-year-old Rusko is a purveyor of dubstep, which features heavy bass, and released his last album, "O.M.G.!" on Diplo's Mad Decent label.

▶ Straddling the border between jam band and electronic act, the Disco Biscuits draw thousands of fans to their own Camp Bisco festival every year in upstate New York.

▶ Chicago-based DJ White Shadow recently collaborated with Lady Gaga on nine of "Born This Way's" 14 songs—including the title track. (EXPRESS)

5 The number of songs from Katy Perry's "Teenage Dream" that have topped the Billboard Hot 100, making her the first woman to score five No. 1s from one album. Only Michael Jackson had five No. 1s from one album before her, from "Bad." But Jackson spent only seven weeks at the top with his "Bad" songs; Perry has been at the top now for a cumulative 18 weeks. (AP)

Best Bets

USA

Burn Notice

Jesse and Fiona (Gabrielle Anwar, shown) take on a surveillance job for a pharmaceutical company that may not be what it seems. Michael and Sam interrogate a bomb maker who they believe was involved in covering up Max's murder.

Beyond Scared Straight

This series, returning tonight for a second season with a 90-minute episode, follows unruly teens as they visit a prison and get a wake-up call about what life will be like if they don't change their actions.

LIFE

Russian Dolls

Anastasia, shown, decides to take her life in a new direction, which causes friction with her mom. Boris and Renata prepare for a performance at the opening of a restaurant. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

STUCK WITH HACKETT

Something Out of Nothing

SCIENCE
10:30

"Stuck With Hackett" features eccentric artist, self-taught engineer and survivalist Chris Hackett, shown. An odd mixture of MacGyver and Anthony Bourdain, Hackett cobbles together the most amazing devices out of seemingly unsalvageable materials. In each episode, he's stranded in some desolate situation straight out of "The Road Warrior" and forced to improvise his escape. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNIVERSAL UCLICK)

Drama

Playing Dirty

Eric Close, right, guest-stars on "Suits" (10 p.m., USA) as Travis Tilden, a Boston lawyer who's never lost a case because he's not above employing some shady tactics. Harvey (Gabriel Macht, left) fears he may have to do likewise when he finds himself opposing Travis in a class action suit. (TM)

Weekend Track Work

From Friday, August 19 at 10 p.m. to Sunday, August 21 at closing:
Buses replace trains on the Red Line between Glenmont and Fort Totten.

Temporarily closing stations and suspending train service is necessary while Metro replaces ties, improves rail surfaces, tests NTSB-recommended cable insulation and installs federally mandated cable for enhanced cell phone coverage.

For information on free shuttle bus service, parking and alternate routes, please visit MetroForward.com or call 202-637-7000. Track work projects like this are part of Metro's commitment to building a better ride for you.

depressed?

NIH is studying a novel medication for rapid antidepressant response and its effect on memory & attention using neuroimaging.

NIH researchers seek currently depressed persons ages 18-55 to enroll in research studies evaluating how an FDA-approved drug, Scopolamine (for motion sickness) versus placebo can help with depression. In one study, the drug is given intravenously over 7-sessions (inpatient or outpatient), in the other the drug is given by patch over 12 sessions (outpatient). Participants must not be taking medications for three weeks prior to starting the study.

The studies are conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, and may include brain imaging and attention and memory tasks to help understand the role of some brain chemicals in depression.

Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may fall to you to do something rather unpopular; you have what it takes to do it, but it may be hard to weather the coming criticism.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't hesitate to give your opinions, even from afar. Others are expecting — and anticipating — that what you say will make a difference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may not be ready to take on a certain duty or responsibility, but there will be time to make further preparations very soon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) It's a good day for getting it right — and, indeed, you'll have the chance to show both supporters and critics how it's done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You used to be better able to laugh at yourself, but your inability to do so now isn't likely to last forever. This is only a phase.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can split a difficult task into two or three parts and tackle each separately; this allows you to conserve your energy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Someone who has taught you much in the past may actually come to you for a lesson of his own. You can offer something invaluable.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) It's time for you to do a little digging as you search for that one essential piece of information. Don't be afraid to get your hands dirty.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may feel as though you're heading down the wrong path, but the options are so wide open that any can lead to a desired end.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Focus on that which brings you closer to your heart's desire; anything you do to distance yourself will be harmful to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may receive an unexpected compliment, but you mustn't let it go to your head. Continue on course, and get the work done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The sense that you are coming into your own may be unavoidable — and indeed there is much to going on to make you feel this way.
